A CIVIL WAR LETTER

Camp Summerville, Md.,
March 27, 1864.

My Dear Ellen:

I read your letter by Hull, was very glad to hear from you. Yesterday was my birthday, was twenty five years old. Today is Easter. Suppose you have eaten your Easter breakfast and dinner. Should like to have been with you. I breakfasted on good-sweetened corn pone, coffee, bread and molasses, sour instead of sweet. We draw per man per day, a common tin cup, full and a half of meal, one fourth lb. meat. Sugar, molasses, salt, coffee and rice by the smals, and once in a while some few potatoes.

I got the sugar cake you sent me, did not expect you to rob yourself for me, although considering the circumstances made it the sweeter. You spoke of sending me a box. It would be a great treat, but I have had plenty to eat so far, as Will Yeager had gotten a little meal somewhere.

The Imboden and Jackson men are coming back. Six have come to this company from Imboden. They will all have to come back. I have not heard from Howard yet. We have had some cold blistery weather; the 23rd the snow was ten inches deep, deeper than in Poca, I expect. Tho' it is now nearly all gone. The Blue Ridge is white yet.

Orders now to furlough one man out of every hundred. It is nothing to see artillery and Yanks here. I saw some today. I will go on picket tomorrow and come off Wednesday. This reg't will have to go on picket about two days out of ten. I was sorry to hear that mother was unwell hope she is well now. I am glad your mother is going to stay with you this summer. Don't forget to keep Willie straight. You must plant plenty of onions this summer, double portion. I want some onions to my pore. You want to get some paper and envelopes if you can for I want to hear from you frequently.

Give my love to all, kiss my little baby for me, and take good care of yourself. Have the horses taken away as soon as they can do well.

Your affectionate husband,
Wash.

P. S. This paper costs eight dollars a quire. Direct your letters as you did except Early's Division instead of Johnson's.

Editor Pocahontas Times:

The George W. Arbogast letters have awakened in my mind a flood of recollections of events long past and gone. The writer of the letters was one of my good friends, and the tragic events of the battle of Spottsylvania that terminated his earthly existence, are indelibly impressed on my mind. He had received a severe wound in his leg at the battle of Port Republic on the 9th of June, 1862, which rendered him incapable of service for several months. At the battle of Port Republic our company lost ten men, killed and wounded. Those killed or mortally wounded were Bible John A., Campbell J. Milton, Cassell George, Houchin Charles, Hudson Dallas, Hicks John G., Woodell William, Warwick Emanuel. The wounded who recovered were, George W. Arbogast, Peter H. Warwick and John Wilfong of David. We were under a terrific fire of both musketry and artillery and were driven back some distance until the Louisiana brigade accomplished its flank movement on the right of our line. I assisted in carrying Geo. W. Arbogast back to a position of safety. The battle of Spottsylvania was fought on the 12th of May 1864. The enemy made a charge on General Edward Johnson's division, holding the semicircle which was afterwards known as the "bloody angle." Before daylight on the morning of the 12th taking Johnson by surprise, the enemy captured a large portion of his men, including the General himself. Our division under command of General John B. Gordon was rushed to the scene for the purpose of making an attempt to retake the breast works which were now in possession of the enemy. We were hurriedly formed for the charge to retake the woods. I saw General Lee ride in front of our line and stand ready to lead the charge. I saw General Gordon rush to General Lee's side, and as he did so, heard him exclaim, "General Lee, go to the rear, these men never fall" and taking General Lee's horse by the bridle led him to the rear and then he gave the command "Forward, double quick, charge!" We retook our breastworks all except the apex of the angle which our line was not long enough to reach. The men of our company killed or mortally wounded were Arbogast, Geo. W. Long, John W. Long, Lafayette, Nottingham John W., and Moore Jas. C. Wounded—Yeager, Henry A., Wilfong Wm. G., Swink Z. J., Slaven A. J., and Hull, W. H. I found Geo. W. Arbogast outside the breastworks (we having gone a short distance beyond the works in our charge and then falling back to the works) and with the help of two members of the company we carried him back of the works, and from there he was carried to the field hospital by the ambulance men. He said he was not taken by surprise and to tell his wife and friends he was prepared to go. He insisted that we should not go to get him behind his breast works, that his wound was fatal and that he could live only a very short time. I opened his clothes and saw that the ball had entered his body in the region of his heart.

A gem of gems in jewels set,
And each jewel a nugget of gold,
The gold, twenty-four carats net,
Never to tarnish by heat or cold.

Little Levels District Sunday School Notes:

The Sunday School work in the Little Levels is progressing nicely. The District officers have been busy for the last few weeks visiting the schools and getting the reports asked for by the County Association. These reports are now all in and are very gratifying indeed, as they show the schools to be in a flourishing condition. It is the hope of the district officers to make Little Levels a "Front Line District" by the time the County Convention meets in August. Emmanuel and Hills Chapel have recently organized both Young Peoples' and Adult Classes, and are doing good work. It is expected that Marvin Chapel will organize on next Sunday. The school is doing fine, and as soon these classes are organized we look for great work from them. Out of a total enrollment of fifty at Sharon there were forty-eight present last Sunday. Who can beat that? Sharon also has the honor of having the largest Bible Class in the District. On last Sunday the attendance at Wesley Chapel was the largest we can remember. There was not seating room in the main Sunday School room for opening and closing exercises, a good many of the pupils having to stand around the wall for these exercises. Reports from other schools in the district will be published later.

A CASUAL OBSERVER.

I infrequently visit the county-seat and then can't help but note with interest the different types of men with which I chance to meet and see other people meet.

An incident of recent date will help me decide at least one type year and you meet only every other year for convenience we will call him Mr. Office Seeker which if the action could be reversed and be the office seeking the man it would never see him.

Mr. Office Seeker was standing on a corner in a business section of the city looking down street, an honest, intelligent looking man, presumably a farmer was coming up the street. Mr. Office Seeker stepped up beside an acquaintance and was heard whisper, "Who is that guy?" An indistinct answer was made and thereupon Mr. Office Seeker started down the street apparently not seeing anyone and bumped squarely up against this unknown man who was meeting him. After excusing himself he took the stranger by the hand and called him by name, asking him how all his people were, with some other common conversational remarks. When he saw that his conversation was not very interesting to the stranger he asked the question which is peculiar to his type, "Where did I meet you before?" And then for the first time the stranger spoke up with the usual good-natured lie, "I don't remember," and they both passed on their way.

Then of course I saw several acquaintances on the street and in their places of business who greeted me with the usual, "How-do-you-do!" But the thing that impressed me most on this trip was my visit to the Marlinton General Hospital, an institution for which not only Marlinton and Pocahontas county, but the Greenbrier Valley should and will be grateful. Personally I can never repay, not so much the institution, but the skilled physician and surgeon, who so faithfully and patiently worked to save my life which was almost extinct before he had a chance to observe. This institution under the management of the physician just referred to and his assistant justly merits the attention of the people of this Valley. It is being greatly enlarged and is being equipped with modern conveniences and equipment and the service which these men are able to render should be sought by all our sufferers.

Visit the place, see for yourself, and help to keep this most worthy institution up.

Editor Pocahontas Times:

When the thermometer registers 92 degrees in the shade, and it is scorching hot in the sunshine, the best thing we find to do is to don our bathing suits and go in swimming. This we usually do about 5 p. m. and find it very exhilarating. Personally, I prefer to take my plunge the first thing in the morning just at sunrise, and then look out for a full grown appetite for breakfast.

We have had unusually dry weather the past two months, and it has been quite hot for a week or two. Notwithstanding the dry, hot weather there was an unusually heavy orange bloom and the young fruit seems to be "setting" fine, bidding fair for a large crop next winter. Oranges brought from $1.50 to $4.00 a box on the trees here the past winter, and grape fruit $1.00 to $1.50 a box net. The outlook is very encouraging in the citrus business here now. There are many inquiries for well developed groves.

Some large sales have been made recently. Many winter tourists, as well as regular residents, are now heading north for the summer, some going by rail, and a surprising large number motor home after the pleasures of the winter season with their machines over the good roads of Florida. We have secured our reservations for the 25th inst, and we expect to leave on that date. As the Times follows me wherever I go, I will ask you to change my address from Clermont, Florida, to Church Hill, Maryland, and I shall be glad to meet you there. In conclusion, I beg to say that our town—Clermont—is building rapidly, and that it has a bright future. I would submit the following lines as Nature's gift to our young and rising city.

And each jewel a nugget of gold,
The gold, twenty-four carats net,
Never to tarnish by heat or cold.

C. B. Kyle is moving on the Captain Phillips farm this week.

Misses Virginia Hull and Helen Burner spent Easter with their parents.

Editor of The Pocahontas Times:

I think that they are forcing the season a little in bringing out Democratic candidates for Congress in the Sixth District as the primary is a good way off yet. But it is natural for the candidate to blossom in the spring even if the frosts do some time nip them in the bud.

The reports of the late elections indicate that our Republican friends are sinking in their tents, and that they are sore and dissatisfied, and the responsibility may once more be placed upon the Democrats to correct some of the mistakes of the Moses who was to lead us out of the teeming land of Egypt through the deserts of normalcy.

Without any disparagement to the distinguished gentlemen who have been mentioned for Congress, I have had in mind for months, a candidate, whose fitness, ability, honesty and urbanity will be recognized by the mere mention of his name, Judge Vernon Champe, of Montgomery.

The Burks, Kellys, the Sheas, and all other good citizens would rejoice in his strength and support him gladly.

I belong to the old guard. I have seen many an election. I have celebrated many a victory of our party, and I have been a mourner at many a defeat. But it has been all the same to me whether I was in a triumph or binding up the wounds of those who fell upon the stricken field. Many of my old comrades are under the sod, but the Democratic party lives—the party so often doomed to death is fated not to die.

I recommend to the party Judge Champe. The sunset of life gives me mystical lore and I see clearly the Democratic hosts coming back. Let us hope that it is this year. And let us hope that it is the right man to send to Washington. The best is good as any.

The foe is scattered: There is not a satchel stick left growing on New River.
